U.S. Army's "Soldier Show" Performs at Barker Theater, POM Annex Sept. 23

POM Annex - It's coming! The U.S. Army Soldier Show will entertain service members from 8-9:30 p.m. Sept. 23 at the POM Annex Barker Theater. Sgt. Irving Berlin created the initial Soldier Show in 1918 with the motto, "entertainment for the soldier, by the soldier." Admission is free. Doors open at 7 p.m., with first priority given to active-duty people. All others are welcome.

Cast and crew members are normally stationed in Germany, Japan, Hawaii and several continental U.S. bases. Local commands nominate Soldier Show personnel, who serve 179 days on temporary duty to the Army's Community and Family Support Center. Soldiers return to their home units after the Soldier Show completes its six-month tour. Some performers appeared in previous year's shows, while others were selected for the first time.

Cast and crew members range from privates E-2 up to captain. Their regular Army jobs range from infantryman, Bradley Fighting Vehicle NCO and artilleryman in the combat arms. Other soldiers work as transportation or supply specialists, medics, a licensed practical nurse, a medical laboratory technician, signal, legal, food services, photo-journalist, personnel specialist, and electronic test equipment maintenance.

Everyone doubles up as crew members when not sharing the spotlight. Some production crew members have additional jobs such as transportation, logistics, safety, training, wardrobe, audio engineer or dance coordinator. Everybody pitches in to load and unload the 40,000 pounds of equipment and stage props, and set everything up before live performances. The 31-person unit has its own first sergeant.

Barker Theater accommodates up to 830 people seated, but the fire department will allow standees by the aisles if they don't block fire exits.

NOTE:

The POM Police have announced the route, parking and admission information for the upcoming Soldier Show at the Barker Theater on the POM Annex.

THREATCON NORMAL through BRAVO

THREATCON Normal. Applies when there is no discernible threat of possible terrorist activity. Under these conditions, only a routine security posture, designed to defeat the criminal threat, is warranted. The minimum THREATCON for U.S. Army commands is Normal.

THREATCON Alpha. Applies when there is a general threat of possible terrorist activity against personnel and/or installations, the nature and extent of which is unpredictable, and circumstances do not justify full implementation of THREATCON Bravo measures. However, it may be necessary to implement certain measures from higher THREATCONs resulting from intelligence received or as a deterrent. Commands must be capable of maintaining THREATCON Alpha measures indefinitely, with only limited impact on Normal operations.

THREATCON Bravo. Applies when an increased or more predictable threat of terrorist activity exists. Commanders must be capable of maintaining the measures of this THREATCON for several weeks without causing undue hardship to personnel, substantially affecting operational capabilities or aggravating relations with local authorities and members of the local civilian or host nation community.

Safety intern receives academic honors

Story by Debi Sage Sentinel staff

There are certain professionals we all expect confidence in, such as doctors, dentists, child care providers and auto mechanics. Another area that demands such confidence is safety. One of Fort McPherson's newest safety professionals is keeping that confidence high with recent recognition for her academic performance.

Christina Bass, the U.S. Army Garrison Safety Office's Safety and Occupational Health Specialist Intern, was named honor graduate as she completed the first phase of her intern training.

"This was so wonderful," Bass said. "Being selected as the honor graduate meant so much to me. I had worked and studied so hard the entire time I was there. The recognition I received on graduation day was so rewarding and exciting. It was truly a memorable day for me."

Bass has worked in the Safety Office and has been an intern since Sept. 8, 1997.

The four-month school, held at Fort Rucker, Ala., was just the first of three phases Bass must complete before she concludes her two-year internship in September 1999.

"The first phase was the four months I spent at Fort Rucker. That was formal classroom training," Bass said. "Now I'm in phase II, which is a combination of OJT (on-the-job training) and formal classroom training. Although some specific classes in phases II and III are required as part of the intern program, training in phases II and III is now tailored toward my individual career development plan and the needs of the installation."

The Monterey, Calif., native was very much at home in the academic environment of phase I. She has a bachelor's degree in health science with a concentration in health care management from San Jose State University in San Jose, Calif., and a master's degree in health care management from Golden Gate University in San Francisco.

This was the first year that Texas A&M has taught all the classes," Bass said of her phase I Safety Center schooling. "In the past, it has always been contracted out or government employees would teach them. It's my understanding, based on talking to past interns, that it now has more of an academic twist to it, more of a college atmosphere. I really loved that because it was what I was used to."

Still, she was surprised when she was told she was the honor graduate.

"I was extremely, extremely shocked. It really threw me. I knew I was doing well but I didn't know how well I was doing compared to everyone else. I never had the idea of being the honor graduate in the back of my mind. I was just putting 110 percent into everything I did," she said.

Equally surprising to Bass was the attendance on her behalf at her graduation ceremony.

"My entire office came down for it," she said. "It touched me a lot. I couldn't believe it. I was the only one with my entire office there, which was kind of exciting. The support I receive from my supervisor (Ron Hendricks) and my entire office is outstanding."

Bass attributes her success to "keeping a positive attitude, which is especially important when you're staying in the BOQ (bachelor officers quarters) for four months, away from your friends and your family and all that you're accustomed to. I also was determined to do well. I knew I was going to do well before I got here. I really had it in my mind that I was going to work very hard, take it very seriously, and make the very best of the situation. I felt so fortunate to be there, that I was set on making it a positive and beneficial experience. I strongly believe that you only get out of it what you put into it."

"I credit a lot of hard work and keeping very, very focused. While I was there, it was extremely important to me to do the very best I could. I have very high expectations for myself and for my success in the safety career field, I knew I had to learn and retain a tremendous amount, so that when I came back here I would be a valuable asset to my office and the installation."

After all, Bass knows the importance of maintaining confidence in the safety program.

"It's critical in the safety field that you acquire technical knowledge and that you have the ability to demonstrate and apply this knowledge," she said. "I believe that it is important to have confidence, an open mind and a positive attitude. In your heart and mind you have to know what you're doing."

Tips for Spending Less

(From the Army Community Service/AER Office, Building 4260, General Stilwell Community Center, POM Annex)

If you think there's no way you can cut back on your spending, think again!

Saving money by spending less isn't brain surgery, but it does take discipline. The main ideas are: shop wherever possible on sale, deal or discount; buy value, not price; take care of the things you own; be especially careful on large purchases, never buy on impulse (always plan on your purchases); compare prices whenever possible and pinch pennies—they soon become dollars.

Saving category: Telephone

- Use a food timer to help limit the length of your calls.
 - Check with your long-distance carrier about discount programs that best fit your geographic calling pattern.
 - Consider switching to a cheaper long-distance carrier.
- This can be confusing, to before you sign up for the "deal of the minute" (or other deal of the moment), compare the prices and services.

- Eliminate any add-on services you can do without (such as call waiting, automatic messaging, automatic redial, etc.).
- Plan the topics you want to cover to avoid needing to call back.

Saving category: Transportation

- Public transportation will also get you there, and it's usually cheaper.
- Buying a car? It is always better to buy a two-year-old used car than a brand new car, since most cars incur about 50 percent of their depreciation during the first two years.
- Buying a used car? Better have it thoroughly checked out by a trusted mechanic. Caveat emptor (let the buyer beware).
- Car pools are good for the environment. If possible, start one and share the expense instead of paying 100 percent.

Continuing education key to your career and future

West Point and Military Academy Prep School (USMAPS) Visit

The admissions officer from West Point/USMAPS will visit DLIFLC on Oct. 1 and 2 to brief and meet with soldiers interested in learning more about Westpoint. Briefing will be held on Thursday, Oct. 1 from 4 to 5 p.m. with the location to be announced later. Individual appointments will be scheduled on Oct. 2 in 15 minute blocs between 11 and 1:30 p.m. Contact the Education Center for details at Building 273, phone 242-5325.

College Level Testing Programs

The college level testing programs are a virtual gold mine that can save you time and money. In fact each test that you pass can save you an average of $321 in tuition and 60 hours of time which is usually required for a three semester-hour course at a local college.

The five CLEP General Exams are: English, Humanities, Social Sciences and History, Natural Science, and Math. These gauge your level of knowledge on subject categories normally completed during your first two years in college. For example, the Humanities exam contains questions about philosophy, religion, music, and art. The Social Sciences and History exam contains questions about psychology, sociology, government, American history and western civilization. All of these exams are recommended for six semester hours of lower level credit; and are free to service members.

Beware non-accredited degree programs

Officer and Enlisted Personnel Management offices have recently received more than the usual number of transcripts and credentials from unrecognized accredited schools. Only accreditation through regional, national, or specialized accrediting groups recognized by the Council for Higher Education Accreditation (CHEA) will be accepted as official. The Internet has generated an explosion of legitimate and questionable degree programs. As in any marketplace, buyer beware is sound advice. The POM Education Center has reliable information on CHEA recognized schools and degree programs approved for Tuition Assistance funding by the Military.

INTERNET available at POM Education Center

The education center has been hooked up to internet for the past year; and the "Wide World of Knowledge" is just a click away. We can provide links to the active and Reserve Components of each Service with detailed listings of each of their educational programs. In the Distance Learning area, direct links allow you to browse the Home pages of over 120 universities and colleges with whom the military has Memoranda of Understandings. Come in to browse through the enormous amount of additional related material available. Our staff can assist your searches for career, scholarship, degree, and all other education related information. Internet access available on a first come, first served basis at Building 273.
